Traffic was backed up in both the north- and southbound lanes of Highway 2 due to multiple collisions and poor driving conditions just south of the Carstairs overpass on Jan. 2.

Arena opened up to stranded drivers

BY KEVIN VINK MVP Staff

Despite three multi-vehicle crashes and many more smaller incidents, police reported no injuries in the chaos on Highway 2 in the Didsbury and Carstairs area on Friday, Ian. 2 area on Friday, Jan. 2.

Cpl. Warren Wright said weather was a contributing factor in the incidents, which included everything from small cars to semi-trucks. Freezing rain in the early morning turned into ice on the roads and blowing snow reduced traction further, and lowered visibility.

Wright noted that what likely happened in many cases was that one vehicle would hit the ditch to avoid rear-ending a stopped or slowed vehicle, and others would follow suit.

All vehicles that ended up in the median were stopped by the cable barrier, he added.

The incidents are still under investigation, although he said most of them were chain reactions from earlier incidents. He described how the first incident north of the Carstairs overpass in the northbound lane caused further incidents because people were going highway speeds when they came upon the snarled traffic.

There was a fatal crash on Highway 2, a few miles south of Bowden near the Olds overpass that same day, he said.

With the assistance of Cremona and Carstairs fire crews, police were able to take most of the drivers and passengers involved in collisions to the Carstairs arena, he noted.

CAO Carl McDonnell explained that the practice is not new, and that only a handful of people were expected to arrive in the arena.

"So right now it looks like it will be six or eight people, which isn't a (big) deal for us," said McDonnell, noting that during last spring's large pileup, there were about 50 people at the arena.

Some were checked out for minor injuries and others were simply given a phone to use to call friends or relatives.

One woman, who asked her name not be used, said she had been heading to Red Deer from Calgary before being regrended.

before being rear-ended.

She and her two daughters were in the vehicle at the time, when she decided that it would be best to turn around and make the trip another time.

She had just turned into the Carstairs overpass in order to turn around, when she slowed down behind a semi-truck and trailer.

Group hoping to lend a hand locally

There's a new group in town look ing to help those who need a hand

Essentials For Our Community Didsbury was incorporated as a society at the beginning of December 2014 as a way to help people meet their basic needs. Gil Enns, president of the Didsbury Car Club and the president of Essentials For Our Community Didsbury said at the conclusion of one of the car club's events earlier in 2014, the car club wanting to donate event proceeds to a local charity but found there was no such organization, so a group of civic-minded citizens banded together to see what could be done.

"There was no place in town for that, so we decided to start that, Enns said.

Over the course of a few months, Essentials For Our Community formed a board of directors and gained society status so that any monetary support the group gar-nered for local initiatives could nered for local initiatives could be properly documented and tax receipts given out for contributions.

"It's a lot easier to collect dona-tions and get support from the pub-lic (with society status)," Enns said. Many on the society's board of directors see and hear of the need in the community and thought this would be a good way to get involved, Enns said. While the Mountain View Food Bank and other such groups do good work, many people in Didsbury who need to access those services are without the necessary transportation to access those services, Enns added. Any money raised locally will stay in Didsbury Enns said the society has secured the support of AG Foods.

"We're looking for cash donations so we can purchase (credit vouchers) to AG Foods," he said.

Anyone wanting to volunteer with the society or who may know of someone who may need the society's help is urged to contact board members. Enns can be contacted at 403-994-0845. Maureen Hommy, the society's treasurer, can be contacted at 403-556-0782.

"We went to slow down but others were going too fast and it was just too late," she said, noting that the vehicle ended up in the ditch.

"It was just too bad. We were just going to try and get out of there."

One of her daughters was checked out by EMS for possible injuries, but other than that the trio left unscathed, though the woman lost her cellphone at some point.

They were taken to the arena by Carstairs firefighters.

McDonnell explained that the town usually gets the request from RCMP to house uninjured victims until they can find a way home, and they are generally provided with a meal if needed.

He noted he only remembered one instance where people brought to the arena had to stay the night, and in that case, some local residents let the stranded people stay in their homes ve owner Jody Keller opened up the pharmacy so a couple could acquire medications that they had lost.

"(The process) actually works out really well. There's a whole network with the emergency management team."

As far as safety is concerned, he said drivers can do a few things to make sure they can travel and arrive at their destinations safely.

Check AMA for road conditions before heading out to ensure the roads are in decent shape. Make sure you're running on winter tires, which will reduce stopping distance," said Wright.

The other thing is to prepare for the unexpected. If you're in an accident, you need to have appropriate clothing to be outside for an extended period of time, and you need your cellphone. And be prepared to take accommodations if necessary, because a lot of people are taken off guard."

Protester vows to be back at MLA's office Wednesday

Don James speaks with Dale Vickery in front of MLA Bruce Rowe's office in Olds on Dec. 30.

BY DOUG COLLIE & DAN SINGLETON MVP Staff

A man protesting the move by Olds-Didsbury-Three Hills MLA Bruce Rowe and eight other Wildrose party MLAs to sit with the gov-Progressive erning Conservatives, he'll be back in front of Rowe's office to protest again, starting Jan. when it reopens after the Christmas break.

Nine Wildrose MLAs, including Rowe and the party's former leader, Danielle Smith, crossed the floor to sit with the government in December.

Twice, Don James, 68, of Carstairs has stood in front of Rowe's office to protest the move, bearing a sign that says "Betray = Resign (although the equal sign was positioned vertically instead of horizontally).

James said the sign leans that, having means betrayed his constituents by crossing the floor, Rowe should resign.

His most recent such protest was Dec. 30. Before that, he stood there with his sign on Dec. 22

The next move would when Mr. Rowe's office is open. And that's Jan. 7. That's according to the sign in the door, he said during an interview with the Albertan.

He was asked if he might resume his protest before then.

"I don't plan on stand-ing on the street. I'd sure be encouraged if I saw somebody else do it in the interim," he said.

"If somebody else does it you might join them?

he was asked. "Yeah, I would," he

James said he received lots of support for his stand although he was unable to say precisely how many people did so.

"There was a fellow from the constituency office who I had quite a lengthy conversa-tion with, and he said that their position was that they were simply annoyed that Bruce would not have taken the time to consult the constituency office and then the electorate.

James said.

Two-thirds of the people he talked to he said were 'personally offend-ed.' And to say he simply didn't have time to do it is kind of an affront to the electorate." he added.

James also said several people honked horns, while others driving by wound down their windows. Some waved. He took all that to mean they supported his posi-

Police briefs

Didsbury RCMP recovered a cache of stolen goods from inside two stolen vehicles found on Southridge Crescent on Dec. 29.

An array of tools, collectibles, a pump and a heater were recovered from the vehicles, which were taken from an area east of Carstairs earlier in December 2014.

Cpl. Clint Gulash said the items found in the vehicles were from a spate of break and enters that had been occurring in the area over the past six weeks.

"A massive amount of thefts and (break and enters) have been going on since November (2014). Our (identification) people were successful (in recovering stolen goods) and we're waiting on (results) which could result in an arrest," he said.

The thefts stretch

The thefts stretch from an area including Carstairs and Didsbury to Sundre, Three Hills, Beiseker, Airdrie, Red Deer and Cochrane. A farmer came forward

A farmer came forward with information regarding suspicious activity he witnessed which led police to recover the stolen vehicles and the items inside.

Const. Terry Carew, who put the pieces together from what the farmer reported, said this is an example where the public keeping an eye open for suspicious activity has paid off.

"That's why it's important for people to report suspicious people, even if nothing happens, because it can be linked to other things," said Carew.

She noted police are often dealing with the same people, so if a description of a suspect can be obtained, sometimes it can lead to a bust – or at the very least add to police's data.

add to police's data.

People can protect their property by discretely marking or engraving their initials, phone number, or even licence number somewhere on their expensive items, as this can greatly aid police in identifying recovered items, if the incidents have been reported, said Gulash.

victory over the Ponoka Stampeders

The victory was the Colts' fifth in a row dat-ing back to a Dec. 13 triumph over the Red Deer Vipers on Dec. 13. The line of Ben Strautman, Evan Thompson and Cole Sutherland combined for 12 points against the Stampeders, with Strautman getting three goals, Sutherland a goal and three assists and Evan Thompson two goals and three assists.

"They really had a strong night, that line," said Brent Youngs, the Colts' assistant coach, adding that it couldn't have come at a better time, with the Colts down to three forward lines for the game due to player absences

The Colts took advantage of the Stampeders languishing in the standings (seventh in the north division) by jumping out to a quick 3-0 lead after 20 minutes of play on goals by Thompson, Ryan Klinck and Sutherland.

Another positive for the Colts was that they man-aged, for the most part, to stay clear of the penalty box, which hasn't always been the case, even during the Colts' winning streak.

"The guys played very disciplined hockey up there. We didn't take a lot of stupid penalties or anything and all around it was a good way to start the new year," Youngs said.

Special teams played a large role in the Colts'success, with three power-play goals and a short-handed goal by Klinck

"Special teams definitely played a key role for us and our five-on-five play was strong," Youngs said.

With Sutherland's four points, he picked up where he left off as the player of the week for December 15 to 22, when he notched 10 points in the previous three games. Sutherland now has 42 points on the season, four more than Thompson for the team lead in scoring.

Youngs said the team is firing on all cylinders, just in time for the key part of the season. The Airdrie Thunder is two points ahead of the Colts in the northern division, with the two teams scheduled to square off at the Didsbury Memorial Complex on Jan. 7.
"Right now we're going good. We ended (December) with four wins and we went into Ponoka (and played well). January is a big month for us. We have 11 games (during the month) and nine of them are against divisional (opponents), so this is a really important month for us. This will definitely be the month that will decide where we finish in the standings, "Youngs said.

"Just standing there watching and them go by, they looked at me and they certainly weren't thumbs down or - they didn't have a different opinion," he

James repeated his position given in an earlier interview that the crossing of the floor was cynically timed to occur close to Christmas so peo-ple would be distracted and not pay much attention to it or do much about it.

He was asked if that move will "go to the back burner."

"No, I think there's enough just personal animosity now that it's going to stay and if (Alberta Premier Jim) Prentice calls a spring election, this is still going to be an issue,' James said.

Having done this and vented his anger, James was asked if he plans to run in the next provincial election.

don't have any political agenda within the party structure. The bottom line is I'm not sure I could get along with either of them," James said with a laugh. "I have no ambitions to run."

He was asked why his message has a vertical equal sign, rather than a horizontal one.

"Well, it's because I'm not a very good sign maker," James said. "It vas simply because of the way I built the sign. That's all.

"First I was going to go 'betrayal,' but that's improper English, so I put 'betray' and then I didn't have room to put 'resign' beside it so in order to get the letters large enough to be seen what you saw is what I ended up with. So if I had to do it again, I would have done it differently.

He was asked if anyone seemed to be confused by the message due to that vertical equal sign. "I'm sure that they were when they went by. The answer is 'yes,' and if I did it again, would do it in conventional manner.
